

I was skeptical at first.

When a friend told me about this great new weight-loss product she'd been using, my first thought was, "Yeah, right." I'd already tried everything under the sun with disappointing results (at best), and I was expected to believe that this was the one that was different?

But after many assurances by my friend (including the promise of a money-back satisfaction guarantee), I finally decided to set my skepticism aside.

Intrigued by the Core4 product, which was designed to Accelerate calorie burning, Flush toxins and fats, get Lean with the help of a great-tasting smoothie, and use a proven food sprinkles to Cheat my way out of up to 25% of calories eaten, I decided to give it a go. After all, I figured, what did I have to lose – except for maybe a pound or two of unwanted weight (at least, that was my hope!).

Within just 5 weeks of starting the Core4 system, I was beyond excited to report a weight loss of 11 pounds and 6 ½ inches from my waist and abdomen, dropping nearly 3 dress sizes in the process!

I was hooked.

And when my friends, colleagues, and family started noticing my transformation, I was happy to share the secret to my success so they could start looking and feeling great too.

But I was even more excited when I discovered that I could join the Xyngular team and get paid to do what I'd already been doing for free: tell my friends, family, and other interested folks how they too could lose unwanted weight & inches with Xyngular.

I already had a successful interior design business, so I wasn't looking for a "get rich quick scheme." But I liked the idea of having extra cash on hand to give to others, to help dig wells in Africa and contribute to the local food banks, for instance. It felt good to be able to give back to others, and it all came from the few hours of work I was putting in each week (if you can count having parties and talking to friends about a subject you're passionate about "work").

And I've since been earning more than some people earn in their full-time jobs each month – and that's keeping a part-time schedule of just a few hours each week.

I even turned a good friend onto the opportunity and she was able to quit her part-time job to stay home with her kids full-time – and earn more money than she'd brought home in her previous career working at a bank full-time.

I love helping people earn extra money for whatever they want in life, whether that's putting their kid(s) through college, paying off their mortgage, taking extravagant family vacations, buying a new car, enjoying the feeling of giving back to their community, building a nest egg for a comfortable retirement, or anything else their heart desires!

And I love helping them choose the right Xyngular products to lose weight, increase their energy, and live healthier so they can enjoy those family vacations or the extra time with loved ones they've gained from not having to work so hard to make a good living.

I'd love to help you too!
